What are we all really looking for in an online business?

Here are 6 that seem to be most important:

1. Company Stability: In this day and age, there are so many internet based businesses that come and go so fast. One year or two years seems to be the longevity of 90% of the internet companies I have seen. Why? They have a single product, single focus, and after a while their members get tired, bored, or just want something new. Or the income is just not there!
2. Good Income possibilities: Can I support myself or my family with this business? Everyone is looking for more income, more financial stability, more financial freedom, and a secure financial future. I am too!! However, many internet opportunities either do not pay consistently, you have to continually invest money you don't have, or just do not have the return that they advertise and promote. Out of 10,000 members of any group, perhaps only a very small percentage are actually making an income that could be considered full-time or significant.
3. Ease of Operation: I'm not talking about being easy in a lazy way. Im talking about being able to put your head around the principles, guidelines, and processes involved in making money, making a profit, and generating income that is secure. In addition, having a company website that is easy to navigate, is clearly marked, user-friendly and informative. Every program has its "hook." A way to get you interested and then afterwards you find out just how difficult it is to maintain the program or use their website for information, contact, and training. Anything of VALUE takes hard work, persistence and patience.
4. Quality Products: Are you tired of purchasing a program or an e-book that is supposed to tell you all the deep dark secrets of making money online, only to find out it was written by a third grader? The ideas are old, outdated, so inept that you realize that you have just been taken for a proverbial "ride." Or the product line is so limited that it's virtually impossible to sell 10,000 cans of creamed spinach in your community.
5. Work at Home or part-time: Everyone wants more time with their family, their kids, or their grandkids. Everyone wants more time to travel or see parts of the world they only see in National Geographic. Having an on-line business that generates enough profit to work from your own living room and going fishing whenever I want is high on my priority list!
6. A Global economy: It's not just to have products, or your products, listed in your own neighborhood or country, but around the world? How awesome is that? Tapping into the global marketplace has become mainstream among internet business owners. Is it your time to be a part of it?

Now, these 6 are in no-way complete within themselves. We search for opportunities with many more than these. How about: A long-term residual income or retirement options; good after-sale service, training programs, how quickly money can be made, media support, effective gateways for sales, etc, etc.

I have found my answer to my search with Sound Future International. SFI answers every one of the above concerns with a resounding "YES – that's US!"

How about taking a look for yourself? It's free, with no obligation, and then you can make your informed decision.
